MOBILE DRIVER LICENSE (mDL) SYSTEM

Introduction:

The Department of Administration, Division of Motor Vehicles, is seeking information from qualified vendors who provide Mobile Driver License (mDL) system.

It is comprised of the same data elements that are used to produce a physical driver's license, however, the data may be transmitted electronically to a relying party's reader device and authenticated.

This system should be designed using resources including (but not limited to) the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators (AAMVA) Mobile Driver's License Implementation Guidelines, published in January of 2023, as well as the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) minimum standards for driver's licenses and identification cards acceptable by federal agencies for official purposes (attached for reference are: mDL-Implementation guideline and DHS Minimum Standards for DL and ID cards).
