Questions submitted by potential bidders and answers from the State:

Question 1: Are bidders required to provide armed pricing, since it is not part of the standard requested services? Will our bid be marked as non-responsive if we do not provide the information?

Answer: Yes, bidders are required to provide armed pricing. Please note that armed pricing is for information purposes only and will not be evaluated. Bids will be marked non-responsive if there is no pricing in the armed hourly rate cell/box of the Bid Schedule.

Question 2: If the State requests armed security, can the contractor turn the work/request down?

Answer: If the State makes a request on time and receives prompt notice of denial, it's important to understand that valid reasons for denial may include insufficient staff or inadequate training for personnel. These reasons must be communicated clearly to ensure everyone understands the decision-making process.
