7 AAC 130.202 is repealed and readopted to read:

7 AAC 130.202. Services provided by family members. (a) Home and community-based waiver services covered under this chapter do not include services provided by a legally responsible individual, including the recipient's spouse, the recipient's parent if the recipient is a minor child, the recipient's court-appointed guardian, or other individual who has a legal duty to support the recipient. For purposes of this section, a foster parent is not a legally responsible individual for a recipient placed in the care of that foster parent by the Department of Family and Community Services.

(b) Notwithstanding (a) of this section, a court-appointed guardian may provide home and community-based waiver services to a recipient if

(1) the court authorizes the court-appointed guardian to provide those services under AS 13.26.167(2) or 13.26.311(c); and

(2) the court-appointed guardian is qualified to provide those services and employed by a provider certified under 7 AAC 130.220(a)(1) or (3).

(c) Notwithstanding (a) of this section, a legally responsible individual may provide in-home supports and supported living services under 7 AAC 130.265 if

(1) a provider agency hiring a legally responsible individual after October 1, 2026 documents at the time of hire that

(A) there is no other direct care worker who can provide the necessary services; or

(B) the legally responsible individual has the specific knowledge, skills, or abilities to meet the recipient's needs;

(2) the service

(A) is one that the legally responsible individual would not ordinarily provide in the household to a person of the same age without a disability;

(B) is documented in the support plan under 7 AAC 130.217 and 7 AAC 130.218; and

(C) is not inclusive of duties that the legally responsible individual has for a recipient and that, if not provided, would be considered neglect under AS 47.10.014 or AS 47.24;

(3) a recipient chooses the legally responsible individual to be the provider of the service and the recipient's choice is reviewed annually during the person-centered planning meeting; and

(4) the legally responsible individual

(A) is qualified to provide those services and employed by a provider certified under 7 AAC 130.220(a)(1); and

(B) does not exceed 40 paid hours of home and community-based waiver services under this chapter provided within a seven-day period regardless of the number of waiver recipients for who the individual is legally responsible, unless the individual is authorized to provide services under (b) of this section.
