US AIR FORCE CLEAR, ALASKA AIR STATION

The Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation (ADEC) proposes to issue an Air Quality Control Operating Permit for emission sources at Clear Air Force Station, under Alaska Statutes 46.14 and regulation 18 AAC 50.

Applicant: US AIR FORCE CLEAR, ALASKA AIR STATION

Location: The facility is physically located at Clear Air Force Station, Alaska

Activity: The facility consists of an existing steam / power plant's 3 coal fired traveling grate boilers, 6 diesel electric generator sets, one diesel driven water pump, 13 small oil fired building heaters, and one small cafeteria incinerator. The coal fired boilers are each rated at 100,000 lbs/hr of steam. All the coal fired boilers have multicyclone banks for fly ash removal ahead of their induced draft fans. Coal and ash handling are also sources of particulate matter emissions. The other sources have no emission controls. All sources except the 3 largest diesel electric generator sets and the coal fired boiler plant are insignificant sources of air pollutants.

In December 1997, the Department of the Air Force submitted an operating permit application for the Clear facility as required by 18 AAC 50, effective January 18, 1997. The Air Force submitted additional information and modified the application in June 1999.

Emissions: The significant air contaminant emission sources are the, diesels, boilers, coal handling, and ash handling. The permitted annual emissions of regulated air contaminants at the facility will not exceed: 250 tons of Particulate Matter (PM-10), 2280 tons of Nitrogen Oxides (NOx), 1190 tons of Sulfur Dioxide (SO₂), 800 tons of Carbon Monoxide (CO), and less than 100 tons of hazardous air pollutants such as hydrogen chloride.

Department Preliminary Review: Based on review of Clear Air Station's Operating Permit application, ADEC concurs that the power plant and other sources will comply with emission standards listed in 18 AAC 50.040-090. As proposed, allowable emissions will not cause any violations of the ambient air quality standards and increments. The Department has drafted a statement of basis including a preliminary permit decision to issue an operating permit for the power plant

Available Information: Copies of ADEC's draft Operating Permit and preliminary Statement of Basis are available at the following offices:

Copies of Clear's application are also available at the Anchorage and Fairbanks offices.

Opportunity for Public Participation: Notice is also given that any interested person may present written statements relevant to the proposed Operating Permit for Clear's Air Station 30 days after first publish date. Any person may request a public hearing and that hearing will be held if the department finds that good cause exists. Emergency Trawl Regulations

Body of Notice:

FINDING OF EMERGENCY

ALASKA BOARD OF FISHERIES AND DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND GAME

At a special teleconference meeting on August 30, 1999, the Alaska Board of Fisheries (Board) voted to find that an emergency exists and to adopt an emergency regulation amending 5 AAC 34.828 dealing with restrictions on participation in the Area T (Bristol Bay) red king crab fishery by those who operate trawl gear in Area T during the 30 days immediately before the red king crab season opens. The Commissioner of Fish and Game issues this finding at the express direction of the Board and through a standing delegation of authority from the Board to adopt emergency regulations.

The Board found that an emergency existed, and that the attached regulation is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, safety, or general welfare. The facts constituting the emergency include the following:

1. Background Information

At its March 1999 meeting, the Board adopted a regulation that provided that the operation of trawl gear in the 30 days prior to the Bristol Bay red king crab commercial fishing season disqualified vessels and persons from participation in the Area T fishery. Previously, only the operation of pot gear in the area disqualified vessels and persons from participating, and the preseason exclusion period was 14 days, rather than 30. The reason for the adoption of this regulation was to eliminate the opportunity for preseason "prospecting" for crab by trawl vessels that fished for groundfish in the area and then also participated in the crab fishery. The Board's concerns with prospecting were based on the fact that the Bristol Bay red king crab season was very short (usually no more than 5-6 days) because it had a relatively small guideline harvest level and a fairly high number of participants. The goal of the anti-prospecting regulation was to slow the pace of the fishery in order to prevent possible overharvest of the red king crab resource.

On May 14, 1999, at a special meeting to consider petitions filed pursuant to 5 AAC 39.998, the Board's Petition Policy for Category 2 Management Measures in a Bering Sea/Aleutian Islands King or Tanner Crab Fishery, the Board considered a petition for reconsideration of the Board's adoption of the restrictions on trawl gear operation. The board denied the petition because it did not address an FMP Category 2 measure, but the Board did determine that it would be appropriate to consult further with the North Pacific Fishery Management Council as the restrictions might be considered a Category 3 "Other" measure. Accordingly, the Board asked the Department of Law to put a hold on implementation of the regulation until such consultation occurred.

The Board met in joint session with the Council on July 27, 1999, and discussed the issue with NMFS, the Council and received additional written information from the public. At a special meeting on August 6, 1999, the Board voted to instruct the Department of Law to release the hold on the regulation and proceed with implementation, but also voted to commit to promulgation of an emergency regulation lifting the trawl restriction if the NPFMC and NMFS adopted an emergency regulation requiring 100% observer coverage on trawl vessels during the 30 days prior to the crab fishery for trawl vessels that intended to participate in the crab fishery. The Board also agreed to reexamine the issue during the 1999-2000 Board cycle, with extensive consultation with the NPFMC and NMFS, and specifically asked the Department and/or NMFS to submit an agenda change request to facilitate this reexamination. On August 12, 1999, the North Pacific Fishery Management Council voted to recommend adoption by the Secretary of an emergency.

In the meantime, the parties that had unsuccessfully petitioned the Board had filed an appeal with the U.S. Secretary of Commerce through the Council's Crab Interim Action Committee (CIAC). The CIAC held a hearing on August 11, 1999. After the hearing, one member of the CIAC submitted comments recommending that the Secretary implement a federal emergency rule to supersede the state regulation.

At the Board's meeting on August 30, 1999, a NMFS representative was unable to state whether it would be able to adopt an emergency rule requiring 100% observer coverage by those trawl vessels that would also participate in the king crab fishery. She was also unable to report any resolution of the appeal of the Board's regulation to the Secretary.

2. Conservation Concerns

The Board found that there was a substantial possibility that the Secretary of Commerce would, in fact, issue a regulation superseding the state's regulation and lifting any restrictions on the operation of trawl gear in Area T prior to the red king crab season. This would leave open the opportunity for prospecting for crab by trawl vessels, posing a risk of a more efficient and faster-paced harvest by a substantial portion of the crab fleet and increasing the likelihood of the guideline harvest level being exceeded. This was especially a concern because the guideline harvest level recently announced by the Department for 1999 is only about one-half of the amount originally anticipated. The Board heard reports from the Department of Law that adoption of this emergency regulation by the Board would likely result in no such federal superseding regulation for 1999.

As discussed at its August 6, 1999 meeting, the Board recognized that the presence of observers aboard trawl vessels during the preseason period would mitigate against the likelihood of intentional prospecting by those operating trawl gear, thereby reducing the Board's conservation concerns.

3. Lost Opportunity

The Board found that, if it did not adopt the attached emergency regulation, opportunity for harvest by a significant portion of the crab fleet would be precluded by the delay that would be required for normal regulatory action, and that such delay would be significantly burdensome to the affected fishermen because the crab resource would be unavailable to them in the future. See 5 AAC 96.625(f). The Bristol Bay red king crab fishery is scheduled to open October 15, 1999. 5 AAC 34.810(b). The regulation amended by the attached emergency regulates the conduct of fishermen beginning September 16, 1999, 30 days before the season opens. It would be impossible for the Board to adopt permanent regulations by September 16, 1999.

It is therefore necessary to make an amendment as an emergency regulation to allow the public proper notice and provide for the immediate preservation of the general welfare of the fishery resources and fishing industry of the state.

ADOPTION ORDER

Under the authority of AS 16.05.251 and AS 16.05.270, the above regulation changes are therefore adopted as emergency regulations to take effect immediately upon filing by the lieutenant governor, as provided in AS 44.62.180(3).

This action is not expected to require an increased appropriation.

Fish & Game: Adopted Regulations - Text or Summary of Text Groundfish Fishery Emergency Regulations

Publish Date: 08/31/99

Archive Date: 09/30/99

Location: Statewide

Body of Notice:

FINDING OF EMERGENCY

The Department of Fish and Game finds that an emergency exists and that the attached regulations are necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, safety, or general welfare. The facts constituting the emergency include the following:

1. Groundfish, in particular pollock, in state waters (0-3 nautical miles) are normally managed with state regulations to coincide with regulations for the adjacent waters of the Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) announced by the Regional Administrator, National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS), and published in the Federal Register, unless modified by a separate department emergency order.
2. These state management measures normally include openings, closures, and bycatch limits for the commercial groundfish fishery.
3. On December 3, 1998, the NMFS published a biological opinion under the Endangered Species Act that proposed reasonable and prudent alternatives to avoid the likelihood that the commercial pollock fisheries off Alaska would jeopardize the continued existence of the western population of endangered Steller sea lions. These alternatives included measures to temporally and spatially disperse fishing effort, and exclude or limit pollock trawling in certain areas.
4. The North Pacific Fishery Management Council reviewed these alternatives (December 8-13, 1998) and recommended to the Secretary of Commerce a suite of measures to respond to the need for sea lion protection.
5. On December 16, 1998, the NMFS amended their biological opinion to address many of the Council's recommendations and submitted it to the Secretary who adopted the protective measures on January 20, 1999 for the pollock A season, to be effective through the end of June, 1999.
6. At the end of June, 1999, the NMFS reviewed the endangered Sea lion protective measures and renewed their original recommendations for trip limits and re-instated the regulations for the B, C, and D pollock seasons to be in effect until December 31, 1999.

7. A pollock trip limit measure (136 metric tons/vessel or 272 metric tons/tender) within three seasonal openings was adopted in the EEZ of the Western and Central Gulf of Alaska. These measures aid in the spatial and temporal dispersal of the pollock harvest. A trip limit additionally serves to contain harvest activity so as not to exceed the seasonal pollock quotas necessary to conserve Steller sea lions. The inclusion of state waters is important to provide full protection to endangered Steller sea lions.

8. A trip limit is not a regularly used state method of management. However, to ensure that the public is noticed that the state is concurrently adopting these Steller sea lion protective measures in the state water pollock fishery, this emergency regulation is necessary.

It is therefore necessary to make amendments as emergency regulations to allow the public proper notice and provide protection to Steller sea lions in state waters of the western and central Gulf of Alaska.

ADOPTION ORDER

Under the authority of AS 16.05.251 and AS 16.05.270, the Alaska Department of Fish and Game adopted the above regulation changes as emergency regulations to take effect immediately upon filing by the lieutenant governor, as provided in AS 44.62.180(3).

This action is not expected to require an increased appropriation.
